INDY SNOW FORCE MEETS LOCAL AGENCIES IN WINTER OPERATIONS PREPARATION City seeks more coordination to offer increased residential service

INDIANAPOLIS – Leaders of the city’s newly enhanced Indy Snow Force will meet representatives from local agencies including Public Safety, local utilities, public and charter schools and transportation directors from each township to present an overview of this year’s snow program to better coordinate snow removal operations in the upcoming winter season.

“We will continually seek ways to enhance our snow operations plan throughout the winter season and beyond, to offer residents more service capacity,” said DPW Director David Sherman. “A more coordinated effort between our agencies is essential to providing the best service possible.”

WHAT: 2009 – 2010 Snow Season Briefing/Overview

WHEN: Wednesday, November 18, 2009
9:00 a.m. – 10:00 a.m.

WHERE: DPW Training Center
2700 S. Belmont Ave
Conference Room A.

“Indy Snow Force,” the city’s updated snow operations program boasts several major improvements and adds muscle to the previous snow operations plan. Last week, Mayor Greg Ballard and DPW Director David Sherman announced enhancements to the city’s snow removal plan that provides increased service capacity for the 2009/2010 winter snow season. The announcement began a comprehensive effort to educate residents of the enhanced service they can expect in the upcoming winter snow season.
